The gigabit guarantee for guests

The Bauhaus Hotel and Kitchen is a 39 bedroom hotel, set in the heart of Aberdeen city centre, providing easy access to the city's shops, nightlife and sights. Over 90% of bookings are for business customers.

Working from a standard copper connection meant that the hotel received download speeds of less than 100 megabits per second (Mbps), even in the centre of the city. Links to online booking systems and wifi availability throughout the hotel are business-crucial for a busy city centre hotel with high occupancy but broadband connection was being spread far too sparsely around 39 rooms.

Co-incidentally, enquiries about a new telephone system for the hotel led to an introduction to Inverness-based HighNet who were able to offer General Manager Brian Brechin a full fibre broadband connection with gigabit capable speed for the entire building. Drawing on a voucher worth £2,065 to offset the installation cost means that the hotel now enjoys synchronous download and upload speeds of upto 200 Mbps for less than they were paying before.

Brian Brechin commented: "The opportunity to apply for a voucher to help with connection to full fibre broadband gave us the impetus to make the change we desperately needed for the business and for customers. Our business guests need the reliable wifi guarantee that full fibre can provide."
